Start with a clear plan

A beautifully organised pantry doesn't start with containers. It starts with a plan.

Before choosing your Push Top sizes, take everything out of your pantry and assess what you actually buy and use. Check expiry dates, discard anything stale, and group similar items together.

This step alone will: reduce waste, save you money, stop overbuying, and help you choose the right sizes the first time.

There's nothing worse than buying containers that don't quite fit what you normally purchase.

Measure before you buy

Once your shelves are empty, measure the height, depth and width of each shelf.

Consider:

- Do you want double stacking?
- Do you prefer uniform sizing?
- Will you bulk buy staples?

Planning properly means maximising the potential of your pantry space.

Choosing the right size

One of the biggest questions we're asked is, "Which size should I buy?" The answer really comes down to what you regularly purchase and how your household uses the pantry. To take the guesswork out of it, we've broken down each Push Top size by what it's ideal for and the common supermarket pack sizes it fits. That way, you can choose your sizes confidently the first time.

Taking care of your containers

Keep your Push Top Containers in top condition by cleaning with care. All parts should be hand washed, and the lids pull apart into pieces for easy cleaning.

STEP 1

Gently twist the two halves of the lid in the direction shown on the underside of the lid.

STEP 2

Pull the two halves apart once they are untwisted. Detach the seal and give all the pieces a good wash.

STEP 3

Allow all of the components to fully dry before reassembling.

Important: Never hold containers directly over steam while cooking. Moisture entering the container can affect ingredient freshness.

Label for long-term success

Labels are a must-have for a blissful pantry. Easily identify the contents of each container, making it easier for the whole household to find what they need.

Clear, consistent labels are visually satisfying, and make it easier to see what needs restocking.

Create a system that works

When putting everything back:

- Store everyday items at eye level
- Keep bulk or backup stock higher up
- Group similar items together
- Consider frequency of use

If you have little ones, create a snack zone that they can access easily.

Maintain the calm

Once your pantry is organised, wipe shelves routinely, and reassess the system every few months.

Setting a small amount of time aside to maintain your pantry system keeps the pantry working smoothly, because organising should make life easier, not more complicated!
